GIVING ADVICE TO GRADUATES.

Within recent years a change has come over the character of commencement programs of high schools and colleges. In the good old days "when you and I were young, Maggie," on these occasions the boys and girls read essays or delivered long orations, dealing with all sorts of profound subjects concerning which they displayed marvelous wisdom, and then came the address by the distinguished gentleman who was designated to present the diplomas. Nowadays all this is changed. The essays and orations are written but they are not recited upon the crowd of proud parents and friends who assemble to see the young folks launch their trail blazes on "life's tempestuous sea." However, the address remains much the same "yesterday, today and forever." The gentleman whose duty it is to deliver the sheepskin generally accompanies his remarks with a large batch of good advice, bidding the graduates to eschew all low aims and ambitions, giving forth into the great before them to fight for high ideals, oblivious of the allurement of pet and power. The next day when the boy or girl bumps up against the real thing, possibly in the form of getting a job, he naturally experiences some difficulty in applying the counsel given him to the solution of his bread-and-butter problem.

Far be it from us to dampen in the least the enthusiasm of those young people who begin their careers infused with the fine ideals that the commencement speaker gives them. We would not for a moment have them lower their standards but at the same time it might be well for those who assume to furnish them their sailing directions on commencement day to give them a few more practical pointers about playing the big game. And this reminds us of the address which George Ade puts into the mouth of the fat alderman in one of his "modern fables." The alderman was not exactly a classical scholar and when he was invited to deliver the address he simply requested his stenographer to sit down at the typewriter and beat out about so many yards of "south wind." When the moment for his awful ordeal arrived he couldn't find his manuscript and he therefore launched forth extemporaneously, after listening to the essays and orations of the boys and girls. He understood that we don't give the alderman's sentiments our unqualified endorsement, but possibly his talk may be suggested.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it will be confidential.

time, and certainly it possesses the merit of being amusing. This is what the alderman said:

"Young people, I have been in a kind of trance for a couple of hours. You have been handing over a few just were too high for your Uncle Fuller. I have been around more or less in my time, and I thought I had bumped up against several bright minds, but when it comes to being there with the gray matter you have got all of us old people left at the post. When I stand in the deep shadow of those literary intellects, I feel like a discarded dunce. You ought to be proud of the fact that you have more knowledge than the school board and all of your relatives put together. I think it is a safe bet that you young folks are better posted now than you ever will be again. I notice that nearly all of you take a long run and jump at the almighty dollar and the machine in politics. There seems to be a general determination not to go out after the shekels. What you want is culture and not the coin. If you feel that way about it you can gamble that you will never have enough of it to make you proud and overbearing. Nobody is going to force it on you. In fact, my experience is that it is pretty hard to rake up, even when you want it and want it bad. Probably you have given more thought to this matter than I have, but I would suggest that you get what you can of the long green and afterward have a little culture on the side. I will now ask you to come up and get your sheepskins. Take this precious certificate home and put it in a dark, cool place. A few years hence when you are less experienced, it will give you a melancholy pleasure to look at it and hark back to the time when you knew it all."

At last Louis D. Brandeis has been confirmed by the senate as a member of the supreme court. In spite of the desperate fight that was made against him by interests that have no liking for a man of his kind, only one Democratic senator deserted him and three Republicans voted with the majority. Both of the Oklahoma senators supported him. The real reason for the fight on the president's appointee was the fact that he has too many progressive ideas, particularly on the subject of social justice. That he is a lawyer of great learning and ability was not questioned and numerous trustworthy witnesses testified to his high professional and personal character. His confirmation will be gratifying to all who favor the selection of forward-looking men of his kind for judicial positions.

"That Grady county farmer who sold $15,000 worth of hogs in Oklahoma City went home with the bacon," says the Oklahoma City Times. It would be more nearly accurate to say that he left the bacon and went home with the mazzina. However, as long as Grady county gets the money, we are not disposed to find fault with the perfectly clear phraseology used by our contemporary. Incidentally, there are thousands more of fine porkers feeding on the fertile farms of this county, probably more than ever before, and they are going to make many more fat bank accounts. The farmers of this county are making a practice of putting legs on their corn.

EXPRESS PACKETTES.

You speeding guys had better stop. Just cut it out this very day. You might run down a drowsy cop. And then there'd be the deuce to pay.

Almost anything is a better way to kill time than talking unkindly about folks.

When a man's wife accuses him of being funny, the wisest course to pursue is to admit it, guilty or innocent.

The trouble when a man waits till he is an old bachelor before he takes a notion to marry is that he doesn't know how to go about it.

As we understand it, no golfer has acquired even the first principles of the business until he has learned to brag about his own game.

Unless specific advice to the contrary are received, our rule will be to state that the June grooms are garbed in the "conventional black."

But the Mattox family are probably not particularly proud of the popularity they are enjoying among the members of the burglary profession.

Why don't you look as pleasant all the time as you do when you have your picture "struck"? Human beings are much tamer of smiles than a mere camera.

Candidly, we just can't have any patience with a man who won't wear what his wife wants him to, provided he can raise the price to buy it by putting a plaster on his property or otherwise.

A STOLEN SMILE 'ER TWO.

Reason Enough.

Curiosity Seeker—Love, why do they call you blind?

Love—Well, if you had been sitting around in the dark as long as I have you'd be blind, too.—From Gargyle.

True Happiness.

Happiest boy in all the land.

Spite of fate.

Is he who's "working like a slave" Digging bait.

—From the Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

A Gentle Hint.

He—Then you are not interested in my welfare?

She—No; but if the two syllables were transposed I'd not only be interested, but enthusiastic.—From the Boston Transcript.

I Didn't Think It of Her.

Mother—Gladys, you stood on the porch quite a while with that young man last night.

Gladys—Why, mother, I only stood there for a second.

Mother—But I'm sure I heard the third and the fourth.—From the Baltimore Sun.

TRAINING HUSBANDS.

Miss Mariott, professor of home economics of Wisconsin university, says that plans to raise good husbands were lacking; that the present crop was poor picking. They lack interest in home and shrink their share of responsibilities. That is a pretty just indictment. The growing influence of the lobby, the club, of sport, is diminishing a man's devotion to his home.

There are many men who have fine homes, intelligent wives and interesting children who give ten times the attention to the crowd downtown than they do to these. It is one of the perils of the times, one of the triumphs of materialism. Surely there should be some way to train husbands; but doesn't the admission imply that something is the matter at the home and that the wife may be a little at fault? There are many fine husbands in this city, but they owe that fact principally to their having fine, thoughtful wives. But better husbands are really in great demand, as the professor suggests.—Ohio State Journal.

French Ministerial Etiquette.

The wives of outgoing French ministers suffer a loss of dignity through their husbands' departure from office, for they must conform to the rules of precedence carefully defined by the protocol. It is enacted that the wives of senators and deputies must rise if the wife of a cabinet minister enters a room where they are seated, and they must remain standing until Madame la Ministresse finds a seat.

Ministers' wives show similar deference to the premier's wife, who, in her turn must rise to salute the wife of the president of the chamber or the president of the senate. The last-named ranks in the official hierarchy next to the hostess of the Elysee.

New Use for Hopnines.

One of the latest results of the efforts of Germany's scientists to aid the fatherland is the discovery that hopnines make an excellent material for paper, jute and charcoal.

Corn, mixed, ear	63c
Corn, white, shelled	67c
Corn, mixed, shelled	64c

Chicago Grain.

Chicago, June 1.—First offerings of the 1916 crop came on the wheat market today and quickly brought about a material down turn in prices. The result was a heavy close: 1-3c and 1-5c to 1-7c down with July at $1.05 3-8 to $1.05 1-4, and September $1.07 3-8 to $1.07 1-4. Corn lost 1-5c and 5-8c to 7-8c; oats finished 1-8c off to 1-8c up and provisions at a decline of 10c to 40c.

Prices began to descend as soon as word went around that Oklahoma was offering new harvested wheat within a fortnight. Cutting was said to be already going on in the southern part of Oklahoma.

New York Cotton.

New York, June 1.—The first government crop report of the season was followed by violent fluctuations in the cotton market here today. After selling at 12.75c on the opening, October contracts, for instance, sold up to 12.95c immediately after the publication of the report, later broke to 12.65c closing at 12.65c. The general 1-4 closed at a net decline of 6 to 12 points for the day.

Something New in Dinnerware

The Blue Bird has always been the harbinger of Spring and sunshine. According to all folklore, the bringer of happiness and contentment. This Blue Bird is the design of a Dinner Set made by one of the foremost American potters. The highest point reached in harmony of color, chaste design and, at the same time, the latest thing in the prevailing mode. It will prove to be the greatest ever—a Blue Bird in blue and turquoise with the red of nature on the breast, finished in deep blue lines and tracing. To see it laid out complete is to hear an ejaculation of wonder from every lady who views it.

Zeppelins Built Since the War.

According to a dispatch from Bern, Switzerland, there are now some eighty Zeppelins in the German service. This statement is said to be based on information developed at Friedrichshafen, where the airship works are located. Recently one of the latest type Zeppelins made a trial flight. It bore the number LZ-95, and in design varied considerably from the ante-bellum Zeppelins. Its gondolas are said to be of plated steel. The craft is plentifully supplied with machine guns and apparatus for throwing bombs and aerial torpedoes; among the latter being a new type which is reported to be far more powerful than any heretofore developed. In fact, rumor has it that the new aerial torpedo is to play a prominent part in the event of the German warships and Zeppelins coming out from their sheltering harbors and engaging in battle with the British fleet in the North sea.—Scientific American.

TO THE PUBLIC.

"I have been using Chamberlain's Tablets for indigestion for the past six months, and it affords me pleasure to say I have never used a remedy that did me so much good."—Mrs. C. E. Riley, Union, N. Y. Chamberlain's Tablets are obtainable everywhere.—Adv.

To Keep Nickel Clean.
 To keep nickel clean and polished wash with pure white soap and warm water, wipe dry, then polish briskly with newspaper. This will make it very bright and keep it from tarnishing.

FORETHOUGHT.

People are learning that a little forethought often saves them a big expense. Here is an instance: E. W. Archer, Caldwell, Ohio, writes: "I do not believe that our family has been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since we commenced keeping house years ago. When we go on an extended visit we take it with us." Obtainable everywhere.—Adv.
